BOOT AND SHOE DEPARTMENT.

"COMBINATION" ARMY BOOT,

FOR CAVALRY AND INFANTRY.

LEG DETACHED.

BOOT DETACHED FROM LEG.

The "COMBINATION" Boot (the invention of Captain Graves, XX Hussars,) can be adapted both to Cavalry and Infantry. It is made in two detached parts—viz. the boot itself, the vamp or fore part of which being fastened to the quarter or back part at each side by a strap and buckle, and the movable leg or top, which can at pleasure be attached to the boot by the connecting strap passing under the waist or shank, and fastening at the side by a buckle: in this state of combination it presents the appearance of an ordinary Cavalry or Artillery boot. When the movable leg is detached, which can be effected with the greatest facility, the boot itself can be used for stable purposes, or be worn by Infantry soldiers. The method of closing or fastening the boot is also much superior to that of lacing through eyelet holes as usually adopted in the ordinary "Blucher" boot for Infantry. The leather laces used for this purpose almost invariably break from the continuous pressure of the instep on the boot when the soldier is on the march, the result of which to the wearer is in most cases sore and blistered feet.
